Tenure-Track Assistant Professor of Clinical Psychology
2018 – 2019 Advertisement

The Department of Psychology at the University of Hartford is seeking candidates for a full-time tenure track position as an Assistant Professor of Clinical Psychology in the Graduate Institute of Professional Psychology to begin in August 2019. Primary teaching responsibilities include teaching courses in psychological assessment, as well as in the candidate’s area of specialization. We are particularly interested in candidates who can contribute to the child/adolescent track. Candidates must be able to demonstrate a social justice/multicultural framework in their duties as a faculty member (i.e., pedagogical approach, service, and research).

The teaching load is three courses per semester. Candidates should show a willingness and ability to employ technology in teaching. Additionally, candidates will be expected to remain active in creative/scholarly pursuits and seek opportunities for peer-reviewed publications. Successful applicants will be expected to participate in departmental and school committees, advise students, and contribute to student recruitment and retention. Job responsibilities include supervising dissertation research and providing service to the Graduate Institute of Professional Psychology (e.g., qualifying examinations and admissions). There will also be opportunities to teach in our innovative University Interdisciplinary Studies program and in the undergraduate program.

Essential are excellent teaching, organizational, communication and interpersonal skills. Candidates should demonstrate the commitment and ability to recruit, mentor, and actively engage and involve graduate students in research. The successful candidate must have completed the doctorate in clinical/counseling psychology or closely related field by July 1, 2019. Licensure or ability to pursue licensure as a psychologist in Connecticut is required.

The University of Hartford is an open and welcoming community, which values diversity in all its forms. In addition, the University aspires to have its faculty and staff reflect and inspire the rich diversity of its student body and the Hartford region. Candidates committed to working with diverse populations and conversant in multicultural issues are encouraged to apply.

The University of Hartford offers the personal attention associated with a small college, enhanced by expertise, breadth and intellectual excitement of a university. Our academic mission is to engage students in acquiring the knowledge, skills, and values necessary to thrive in and contribute to a pluralistic, complex world. Our five-year strategic plan was approved in May of 2014 and is being implemented by teams of faculty and staff. More information on the plan and the full text of our academic mission can be seen at www.hartford.edu.
The University of Hartford is located within the greater Hartford area rich in cultural and recreational activities, and is within driving distance from metropolitan Boston and New York. The College of Arts and Sciences is the University's largest college with 23 undergraduate majors, 24 minors, 7 graduate programs and many interdisciplinary offerings. The College includes a faculty of 115 teachers and scholars, 24 staff, and a student body of 1,300 undergraduate and 300 graduate students. Within the College of Arts and Sciences, the Department of Psychology has 20 full-time faculty members, 260 undergraduate majors, 100 master's students across two programs (organizational and school psychology), and 130 doctoral students in clinical psychology.

For best consideration, complete applications should be received by October 15. Please submit a cover letter; curriculum vitae; transcript of final degree; teaching philosophy; research philosophy; diversity statement indicating how your teaching, research, and/or mentoring/service value diversity and contribute to a culture of inclusion and community; and the names of three references who will electronically submit letters of recommendation via http://hartford.peopleadmin.com/postings/2243. The University of Hartford is an Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action employer, Male/Female/Disabled/Veteran. Women and members of under-represented groups are encouraged to apply. EEO/AA/M/F/D/V